MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I. INTRODUCTION

Defendants move for Summary Judgment in its favor on Plaintiffs' claims under Monell. Plaintiffs' claims stem from the death of Decedent Leroy Varnedoe who was gassed and burned to death while in his home after Los Angeles Sheriff's Department Deputies threw a highly flammable gas grenade into his home.¹

Decedent never stood a chance, as the flames from the highly flammable gas grenade which was housed in a handmade container quickly engulfed the house, because it was used improperly and ignited a piece of furniture (a couch). There was no plan to handle the foreseeable fire and as a result, Decedent died a horrific death, suffering from thermal burns to more than 80% of his body and severe smoke inhalation.

The container device that was used by deputies to burn the Decedent was never tested in a manner consistent with industry standards or at all, and no one from the Sheriff's Department knows who manufactured it (although there is deposition testimony that it was "homemade" and referred to as a "Relic"). No one knows where it came from, when it was introduced into the SEB arsenal, or if it had ever been tested prior to being allowed to be used by SEB.

This device is a heavy metal tube-like canister with a screw top, a handle on its side (for ease of tossing into a location) with holes in the container. The chemical gas grenade was placed into the canister and activated within the metal canister immediately prior to deployment into the house. The holes in the metal canister allow the gases and flames from the pyrotechnic-type chemical grenade to escape and saturate the area with chemical agents.

¹ The gas grenade was not intended for indoor use as the manufacturer states it is designed for outside use for riot control.

1 Additionally, all manufacturer's warning labels on the gas grenades 2 themselves (which SEB members utilized to place into the metal canister) were 3 ignored and/or unknown to those involved in the incident, including several 4 commanding officers with many years of experience as well as the Sheriff's 5 Department's designated person most knowledgeable.²

6 The individual officers ignored the warning labels despite the fact that on the 7 gas devices deployed, the warning labels stated the gas grenades were not to be 8 used indoors because of a high probability of starting a fire.

9 The commanding officer on scene, the officer who developed the gas plan, 10 the incident commander who authorized the gas plan, and the person designated by 11 the Sheriff's department as the person most knowledgeable regarding the use of 12 chemical munitions also was uninformed on the warning and its proper use.

13 Los Angeles County failed to reasonably train its deputies in the use of 14 highly flammable and dangerous chemical munitions. This includes the failure to 15 read the warning label, the failure to heed its warning and use the device outside 16 and to use a homemade container to hold the gas grenade which had never been 17 tested.

18 Also signaling the County's liability, substantial evidence shows the 19 Sheriff's Department ratified its deputies conduct that deprived Plaintiffs of their 20 constitutional rights. The Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department failed in both 21 its responsibility and duty to properly investigate the severe events leading to the 22 incident that resulted in Decedent's death.

23 The Sheriff's Department failed to properly investigate and to perform a 24 department executive review of the circumstances that resulted in Decedent's 25 death. Although many of the involved defendants testified that they are aware of a 26

27 ²These individuals stated they never read the gas label for how it was to be 28 used or not used.

1 Department Executive Review process, no one, (including commanding officers or 2 anyone that was involved in authorizing the chemical munition plans, created, 3 supervising, or executing the plan) was involved in any Department Executive 4 Review. The Department's failure to conduct a review falls below the standard for 5 acceptable leadership and supervisory concepts that are commonly recognized in 6 the law enforcement community. Additionally, the County continues to ratify the 7 unconstitutional actions by continuing to implement the dangerous tactics and 8 same devices that killed the Decedent and will undoubtedly kill others.

9 Plaintiffs can and have produced sufficient evidence to establish a Monell
 10 claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 against Defendant County of Los Angeles.
 11 Accordingly, Plaintiffs' respectfully request that the Court deny Defendant's 12 Motion for Summary Judgment on Plaintiffs' Monell claim.

13 II. 14 STATEMENT OF FACTS

15 On February 5, 2015 at 9:00 a.m. Deputy Welle allegedly directed a 16 surveillance on the property located at 45335 Gadsden Ave, Lancaster, California.
 17 (Plaintiffs' Statement of Undisputed Material Facts (hereinafter "PF") 1).
 18 Defendant Welle claims to have had information from various sources that the 19 Decedent Varnedoe had active warrants and possessed firearms. (PF 2).
 20 Defendant Welle passed on information from an unreliable confidential source and 21 hearsay from a bail bond agent to the Special Enforcement Bureau ("SEB"). (PF 22 3). This unreliable information far exaggerated and distorted the Decedent's status 23 as an armed and dangerous individual. In fact, the original source of the 24 information was the person who had put up funds for Decedent's bail and wanted 25 to see him taken into custody immediately, so she would not lose his money. (PF 26 4-5, 7). Defendant Deputy Welle, never bothered to talk to this "informant" until 27 after the Decedent had been killed by SEB members. (PF 6).

28 //

1 At 5:45 p.m. various LASD deputies responded and surrounded the 2 residence and aided by air support used loud speakers to order the occupants to exit 3 the house. (PF 8). Three women and a child exited. (PF 9). All three informed the 4 police that Decedent was sleeping inside the residence and further informed LASD 5 that Decedent was passed out and described him as being no danger or in an 6 agitated state, contrary to the information provided by Defendant Deputy Welle.
7 (PF 10).

8 At all times throughout this entire event the Decedent was never seen nor 9 observed by any law enforcement personnel. (PF 11). There is no evidence to 10 show Decedent ever made any threats to anyone including law enforcement during 11 this SWAT operation. (PF 12). There is no evidence to suggest that the Decedent 12 engaged in any aggressive actions towards anyone, including law enforcement.
13 (PF 13). Moreover, there is no evidence to suggest that the Decedent barricaded 14 himself inside the house. (PF 14). The Decedent was sleeping as described by the 15 female witnesses. (PF 15). The only contact SEB had with the Decedent occurred 16 after the house was burned down. Only then did LASD make contact with a 17 deceased Varnedoe when his naked, burnt body was located. Varnedoe was 18 unarmed. (PF 16).

19 Defendant Captain Ewell, a high-ranking Captain in the Los Angeles County 20 Sheriff's Department, along with Commander Patrick Maxwell determined that the 21 Sheriff's Department SWAT/SEB Team should be deployed to effect entry into the 22 residence. (PF 17). Defendant Sheriff McDonnell was notified, and presumably 23 approved, the plan developed by Defendants, to throw fourteen (14) canisters of 24 gas and a gas bomb into the house where Decedent was residing to "smoke" 25 Decedent out from inside residence. (PF 18, 35-36 (See Declaration of Expert Tom 26 Yu)).

27 //

1 The LASD SWAT team or SEB surrounded the house where Decedent was 2 staying. SEB sent a robot into the house. (PF 19). The robot did not detect the 3 presence of the Decedent in the house because it did not have the capability to see 4 on top of furniture, such as a bed or a couch. (PF 20).

5 Although Defendants were informed that Decedent might be mentally 6 impaired or intoxicated, they received no indication that Decedent was a threat to 7 himself or anyone else during this operation. (PF 21). Decedent did not 8 communicate with Defendants. The Defendants never provided a phone or 9 mechanism by which the Decedent could have communicated with law 10 enforcement.

11 The on-scene leader Patrick Maxwell decided to approve a hot gas grenade 12 manufactured specifically for riot control purposes, to be used exclusively outdoors 13 be placed into a metal canister (euphemistically and misleadingly, called a “burn-14 safe device”) and be thrown inside the house. (PF 22). The metal canister (“burn-15 safe”) device ignited the couch in the front living room where Decedent was 16 residing. The interior of the living room was visible to Defendants through a large 17 window that faced out onto the street. Furniture, including two couches and other 18 flammable items were also clearly visible. (PF 23).

19 In total, over 14 types of chemical agents were thrown into the house which 20 was apparently 1100 sq. ft. (PF 24). This is well in excess of permissible industry 21 standards, especially since no one had communicated with the Decedent and they 22 had no idea if he was incapacitated or not. Further, some of these chemical 23 grenades were specifically manufactured to be used exclusively outdoors and were 24 so labeled. (PF 25).

25 The “gas plan” was initiated by LASD at 11:00 p.m. on February 5, 2015.
26 Massive amounts of gas were fired into the residence. (PF 26). Defendant Deputy 27 Geisbauer tossed a “burn-safe” gas canister. Deputy Salazar deployed a tomahawk 28

1 gas grenade thrown through the southwest bedroom window and the bathroom
2 window. Deputy Salazar fired other rounds into the attic. Deputy McNamara fired 3 three additional rounds into the attic. Defendant Deputy Rodriguez deployed a 4 tomahawk through the window of the door on the north side of the residence.
5 During this outrageous and unwarranted gas attack, Defendant Sergeant Sean 6 Burke supervised and directed the attack.

7 Defendants Deputy Pratt, Deputy Stade and Deputy Wheeler assisted the 8 other named defendants in the tactical operations and carrying out the gas attack of 9 the residence.

10 The reasoning of the on-scene Defendants for deploying the fourteen 11 canisters of tear gas in the residence was that they had allegedly previously 12 employed the gassing in the same manner and it had been effective “smoking out” 13 people who had been hiding inside a building where they deployed this type of 14 firebomb. (PF 27). Thus, based on Defendant County’s practice, and written or 15 unwritten policy, Defendants ordered the incendiary gas canister to be thrown 16 inside the residence, near multiple obvious fire hazards, with no immediate means 17 available to extinguish the bomb or fires it might set inside the residence. This was 18 done while being reasonably aware that at least one person, not believed to be 19 armed or threatening since there was no communication with him, was inside the 20 residence recalcitrant to law enforcement commands to exit the residence, possibly 21 impaired or under the influence, and likely to die should a fire be set inside the 22 residence.

23 Any visual observation into the living room would have disclosed the 24 obvious fire hazards noted herein.

25 //

26 //

27 //

1 No one attempted to prevent the hot gas from igniting a fire. No steps were 2 taken in the placement of the hot gas to reduce or eliminate the possibility of a fire 3 being set by the device's ignition. There was no fire suppression plan in place.³
 4 (PF 28).

5 By the time the Fire Department arrived and had the fire controlled, about an 6 hour later, Decedent was burned to death and had suffered severe smoke 7 inhalation. (PF 29). The Sheriff's Department claims Decedent was hiding in a 8 crawlspace above the kitchen, according to the location of his body. (PF 30). No 9 weapon was found near the Decedent's body. Nor can anyone provide facts that 10 the Decedent had been hiding in an attic. (PF 31).

11 Varnedoe's death was horrific and wholly unnecessary. Varnedoe's death is 12 directly attributed to the actions of the Defendants whereby an excessive and 13 unreasonable "gassing method" was deployed. Defendants used massive and 14 excessive amounts of cold and hot gas with untested faulty equipment. Varnedoe 15 died from smoke-inhalation, burns to his body, and ingestion of chemicals.

16 Although Defendants contend they possessed an arrest warrant, the extreme 17 amount of gas in combination with the use of a dangerous hot gas canisters known 18 to start fires when in contact with carpet and furniture was a departure from 19 accepted law enforcement use of these chemicals. Defendants knew or should 20 have had knowledge of the dangerous consequences of their actions.

21 III. 22 STANDARD OF REVIEW

23 The moving party in a motion for summary judgment bears the initial burden 24 of demonstrating the absence of a genuine issue of material fact. Celotex Corp. v.
 25 Catrett 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986). The evidence of the non-moving party is 26

 27 ³The fire plan was to use the garden hose at the residence next to the subject 28 residence.

1 assumed to be true and all justifiable inferences are to be drawn in their favor.
 2 Young v. County of Los Angeles 655 F.3d 1156, 1158-59 (9th Cir. 2011); Narayan
 3 v. EGL, Inc. 616 F.3d 895, 899 (9th Cir. 2010). The moving party has the initial 4 burden of identifying relevant portions of the record that demonstrate the absence 5 of a fact or facts necessary for one or more essential elements of each cause of 6 action upon which the moving party seeks judgment. See Celotext Corp., supra, 7 477 U.S. at 323. If the moving party fails to carry its initial burden of production, 8 “the nonmoving party has no obligation to produce anything.” Nissan Fire &
 9 Marine Ins. Co., Ltd. v. Fritz Cos., Inc., 210 F.3d 1099, 1102-03 (9th Cir. 2000).

10 As established below, there are disputed material facts as to whether (A) the 11 County ratified the deputies’ unconstitutional actions and (B) the County failed to 12 reasonably train its deputies in the proper and reasonable use of force, and 13 specifically, in the deployment of chemical munitions and responding to 14 incapacitated barricaded suspects. Because both these material facts give rise to 15 Monell liability, Defendants’ Motion for Summary Judgment on Plaintiff’s Monell 16 claim should be denied.

17 IV. 18 ARGUMENT

19 Section 1983 provides for the imposition of liability on any person who, 20 acting under color of state law, deprives another of the rights, privileges, or 21 immunities secured by the Constitution or the laws of the United States. See 42
 22 U.S.C. § 1983. It does not create substantive rights, but rather provides remedies 23 for deprivations of rights established elsewhere in the Constitution or federal laws.
 24 See Graham v. Connor, 490 U.S. 386, 393-94 (1989) (citing Baker v. McCollan, 443 U.S. 137, 144 n.3 (1979)).

25 A municipality may be liable under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 “when the 26 municipality inflicts an injury[.]” Gibson v. City of Washoe, 290 F.3d 1175, 1185
 27 (9th Cir. 2002), overruled on other grounds by Castro v. City of Los Angeles, 833 28

1 F.3d 1060 (9th Cir. 2016). There are at least two paths that “can lead to the 2 conclusion that a municipality has inflicted a constitutional injury.” Gibson, supra, 3 290 F.3d at 1185. “First, a plaintiff can show that a municipality itself violated 4 someone’s rights or that it directed its employee to do so.” Id. “Alternatively, in 5 limited situations, a plaintiff can demonstrate that a municipality is responsible for 6 a constitutional tort committed by its employee, even though it did not direct the 7 employee to commit the tort.” Id.

8 Under the first path, a plaintiff seeking to impose liability under Monell 9 must “identify a municipal ‘policy’ or ‘custom’ that caused the plaintiff’s injury.”
 10 Bd. of Cty. Comm’rs of Bryan Cty. v. Brown, 520 U.S. 397, 403 (1997). To prevail 11 under this approach, a plaintiff must show: “(1) that he possessed a constitutional 12 right of which he was deprived; (2) that [the municipality] had a policy; (3) that the 13 policy amounts to deliberate indifference to [plaintiff’s] constitutional right; and 14 (4) that the policy is the moving force behind the constitutional violation.” 15 Anderson v. Warner, 451 F.3d 1063, 1070 (9th Cir. 2006) (internal quotation 16 marks omitted); see Burke v. City of Alameda, 586 F.3d 725, 734 (9th Cir. 2009).
 17 Also important, evidence that an authorized policymaker on police matters made or 18 ratified a decision that deprived plaintiffs of their constitutional rights suffices for 19 official liability. Larez v. City of Los Angeles, 946 F.2d 630, 646 (9th Cir. 1991).

20 Under the second path, “a plaintiff need not allege that the municipality 21 itself violated someone’s constitutional rights or directed one of its employees to 22 do so.” Gibson, 290 F.3d at 1186 (citing City of Canton v. Harris, 489 U.S. 378, 23 387-89 (1989). Rather, “a plaintiff can allege that through its omissions the 24 municipality is responsible for a constitutional violation committed by one of its 25 employees, even though the municipality’s policies were facially constitutional 26 [and] the municipality did not direct the employee to take the unconstitutional 27 action[.]” Id. (emphasis in original); see Waggy v. Spokane Cty., 594 F.3d 707, 28

713 (9th Cir. 2010) (noting that for purposes of Monell liability, “a policy can be one of action or inaction” and in order to state a claim based on inaction, “a plaintiff can allege that through its omissions the municipality is responsible for a constitutional violation committed by one of its employees”).

Here, Plaintiffs assert Monell liability under both paths by asserting the County (1) ratified the individual deputies’ malicious and blatant excessive force; and (2) failed to train its deputies in the proper use of deadly force in that it failed to provide any training for the deployment and use of smoke grenades and burn safe devices. The County also failed to train its deputies in responding to a situation with a non-cooperative suspect. For these reasons, the Motion for Summary Judgment should be denied.

A. First Path-Practice of Custom

A plaintiff can support a Monell claim under the first path by showing one or more of the following: (1) “a longstanding practice or custom which constitutes the standard operating procedure of the local government entity[;]” (2) “that the decision-making official was, as a matter of state law, a final policymaking authority whose edicts or acts may fairly be said to represent official policy in the area of decision[;]” or (3) “that an official with final policymaking authority either delegated that authority to, or ratified the decision of, a subordinate.” Ulrich v. City & Cty. of San Francisco, 308 F.3d 968, 984 (9th Cir. 2002). Here, officials with final policymaking authority for the County of Los Angeles Sheriff’s Department ratified the individual defendants’ severe constitutional violations. The County of Los Angeles’ failure to conduct any review or investigation into the horrific events on February 5, 2015 along with the fact that the County continues to allow the use of the deadly device illustrates that it continues to ratify its deputies gross unconstitutional actions.

Monell is shown when plaintiff demonstrates evidence that an authorized policymaker on police matters “made or ratified a decision that deprived plaintiffs

1 of their constitutional rights.” Larez v. City of Los Angeles, 946 F.2d 630, 646 (9th 2 Cir. 1991). A jury can properly find such policy or custom from the failure of the 3 policy maker to take remedial steps after the violations. McRorie v. Shimoda, 795 4 F.2d 780, 784 (9th Cir. 1986) (custom inferred from failure to reprimand or 5 discharge); Grandstaff v. City of Borger, Tex., 767 F.2d 161, 171 (5th Cir. 1985) 6 (“subsequent acceptance of dangerous recklessness by policymaker tends to prove 7 his preexisting disposition and policy.”) (emphasis added). The Ninth Circuit 8 Court of Appeals has frequently found municipal liability on the basis of 9 ratification when officials adopted and approved of the acts of others who caused 10 the constitutional violation. See, e.g., Hammond v. County of Madera, 859 F.2d 11 797, 802-03 (9th Cir. 1988) (board, which was responsible for approving transfers 12 of rights-of-way, accepted and approved of transfer documents that resulted in 13 deprivation of constitutional rights); Larez v. City of Los Angeles, 946 F.2d 630, 14 645-48 (9th Cir. 1991) (individual filed a complaint with the LAPD alleging 15 excessive force was used against him in a search, LAPD investigated it, but none 16 of the complaints were sustained, thereby ratifying the investigation and search).
17 “Extreme factual situations” also support a finding of ratification as a result of a 18 policymaker’s failure to discipline.” Garcia v. City of Imperial, No. 08cv2357 19 BTM (PCL), 2010 WL 3911457, *2 (S.D. Cal. Oct. 4, 2010) (citing Peterson v.
20 City of Fort Worth Texas, 588 F.3d 838, 848 (5th Cir. 2009)). For example, in 21 Grandstaff v. City of Borger, 767 F.2d 161 (5th Cir. 1985), a case in which police 22 officers “poured their gunfire” at a truck and an innocent bystander, the Fifth 23 Circuit held, based on the fact that no discharges or reprimands followed an 24 “episode of such dangerous recklessness,” that “the jury was entitled to conclude 25 that it was accepted as the way things are done and have done in the City of 26 Borger.” Id. at 171.

27 //

1 Here, the County's failure to take any review action after the gross and 2 severe reckless actions of its deputies killed the Decedent illustrates its approval
3 and ratification of the individual deputies' actions. A review would have exposed 4 the multiple gaffes and total lack of facts to justify this deadly force. After the 5 incident, no debriefing was conducted. (PF 60). To date, the Sheriff's Department 6 still uses the flammable gas grenades with the relic "burn safe" device both indoors 7 and outdoors. In fact, testimony shows that after this incident there has been no 8 changes to the way defendants use gas grenades or respond to recalcitrant suspects.
9 (PF 62). Despite the death from this incident, no Department Executive Review 10 (DER) of the incident was performed. (PF 61) Many members of the Sheriff's 11 Department stated that they had no desire to investigate what actually caused the 12 fire. Captain Ewell testified that one of the reasons no follow up investigation into 13 the incident occurred was because they "were an extremely busy team." 14 Commander Maxwell testified that it was not "his job" to know what caused the 15 fire despite the fact that he was the one who approved the gas plan. Additionally, 16 Decedent's death did not trigger any type of equipment review into the use of the 17 grenades or the burn safe device (which isn't safe). By not performing a DER after 18 this fatal incident, shows the Sheriff's Department fell below the standard of 19 acceptable leadership, management, and supervisory management that is 20 recognized in the law enforcement community. (PF 60-63). The Department's 21 refusal to conduct a review is itself a ratification of the unlawful actions of its 22 deputies. See McRorie v. Shimoda, 795 F.2d 780, 784 (9th Cir. 1986).

23 The primary arson investigator, Tania Owen, submitted an official report 24 involving her investigation and indicated that she was not aware of the lab results 25 that revealed "No recognizable ignitable liquid residues were detected in items 26 three, four, and five" which was from the evidence collected at the scene. (PF 63).
27 Subsequently, Investigator Owen admitted under oath that she had not completed 28

1 the investigation as of her deposition dated February 28, 2018, several years later.⁴
 2 (PF 64). Additionally, Investigator Owen never took any photographs, conducted 3 interviews, nor did she inspect the device used to deploy the chemical agent. (PF 4 65).

5 The County of Los Angeles's ratification of the unconstitutional conduct of 6 its deputies must result in the municipality being held liable to Plaintiffs. A 7 municipality will be liable under § 1983 when it "ratified a subordinate's 8 unconstitutional decision or action and the basis for it." Clouthier v. Cnty. of 9 Contra Costa, 591 F.3d 1232, 1250 (9th. Cir. 2010). Specifically, for ratification, 10 "when a subordinate's decision is subject to review by the municipality's 11 authorized policymakers, they have retained the authority to measure the official's 12 conduct for conformance with their policies. If the authorized policymakers 13 approve a subordinate's decision and the basis for it, their ratification would be 14 chargeable to the municipality because their decision is final." City of St. Louis v.
 15 Praprotnik, 485 U.S. 112, 127 (1988). By allowing the continued use of the 16 highly flammable and dangerous smoke grenade and burn safe devices and by not 17 conducting any type of review into the incident after the severe and horrific death 18 of Decedent, such conduct is one of the "extreme factual situations" that supports a 19 finding of ratification as a result of a policymaker's failure to discipline." See 20 Peterson v. City of Forth Worth Texas, 588 F.3d 838, 848 (5th Cir. 2009).

21 Therefore, by virtue of the evidence presented, Plaintiffs can establish a 22 prima facie case that Defendant County of Los Angeles ratified the excessive force 23 of its deputies. Consequently, Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment for 24 Monell should be denied.

1 B. Second Path – Failure to Train and Failure to Supervise

2 Despite the overwhelming evidence that the County ratified Defendant’s 3 conduct, Plaintiffs have a stronger case for Monell liability under the failure to 4 train theory. A plaintiff proceeding under this path must show that: (1) “a County 5 employee violated [the plaintiff’s] rights;” (2) “the County had customs or policies 6 that amount to deliberate indifference;” and (3) “these policies were the moving 7 force behind the employee’s violation of the plaintiff’s constitutional rights.” 8 Gibson, 290 F.3d at 1194; see Anderson v. Warner, 451 F.3d 1063, 1070 (9th Cir.
 9 2006). Defendants’ Motion for Summary Judgment only challenges Plaintiffs’ 10 ability to prove the second and third prongs of this test.

11 In this case the County failed (and is still failing) to reasonably train its 12 deputies in the proper and reasonable use of force (deployment of chemical 13 munitions). The specific areas the County clearly failed to reasonably train its 14 deputies include deployment of chemical agents into residences; the proper and 15 reasonable deployment of flash bang grenades; the proper and reasonable 16 apprehension of barricaded suspects; and in responding to a potentially impaired 17 and /or intoxicated subject. “Failure to train may amount to a policy of deliberate 18 indifference, if the need to train was obvious and the failure to do so made a 19 violation of constitutional rights likely.” Dougherty v. City of Covina 654 F.3d 20 892, 900 (9th Cir. 2011) (internal quotation marks omitted).

21 Likewise, a claim based on failure to supervise “may amount to a policy of 22 deliberate indifference” if it is sufficiently inadequate. Id. at 900. In order for 23 plaintiff to prevail on a “failure to train [claim], he must show (1) he was deprived 24 of a constitutional right, (2) the [County] had a training policy that amounts to 25 deliberate indifference to the [constitutional] rights of the persons’ with whom [its 26 police officers] are likely to come into contact; and (3) his constitutional injury 27 would have been avoided had the [County] properly trained those officers.”
 28 Blankenhorn v. City of Orange, 485 F.3d 463, 484 (9th Cir. 2007). The standard

1 for inadequate supervision is the same as the standard for inadequate training. See 2 Davis v. City of Ellensburg, 869 F.2d, 1230, 1235 (1989).

3 In most cases involving a failure to train, “[a] pattern of similar 4 constitutional violations by untrained employees is ordinarily necessary to 5 demonstrate deliberate indifference for purposes of failure to train.” Connick v.
6 Thompson, 563 U.S. 51, 62 (2011). However, there are some circumstances where 7 a pattern of similar violations is not necessary to show deliberate indifference. Id.
8 at 63. This range of circumstances includes situations where “the unconstitutional 9 consequences of failing to train could be so patently obvious that a [municipality] 10 could be liable under § 1983 without proof of a pre-existing pattern of violations.” 11 Id. at 64. In discussing potential examples of single incidents which may be 12 sufficient in the failure-to-train context, the court in City of Canton posed the 13 hypothetical example of a city “that arms its police force with firearms and deploys 14 the armed officers into the public to capture fleeing felons without training the 15 officers in the constitutional limitations on the use of deadly force.” 489 U.S. 390, 16 no. 10.

17 The Canton court reasoned that a municipality’s decision not to train its 18 officers about constitutional limits on the use of deadly force amounted to 19 deliberate indifference “[g]iven the known frequency with which police attempt to 20 arrest fleeing felons and the ‘predictability that an officer lacking specific tools to 21 handle that situation will violate citizens’ rights.’” Connick, supra, 563 U.S. at 63-22 64 (quoting Bryan Cty., supra, at 409).

23 The purpose of single-incident liability is that in some instances, the 24 unconstitutional consequences of failing to train or supervise will be patently 25 obvious that the city or county could be liable under § 1983 without proof of a pre-26 existing pattern of violations. Id. at 64. Accordingly, a plaintiff can establish 27 municipal liability under Monell under the single-incident liability theory when it 28

1 is established that the municipal actor disregarded an obvious consequence of his 2 failure to train or supervise. Id. at 58.

3 Here, evidence overwhelmingly suggests that the County failed to properly 4 train its deputies with respect to the proper deployment and use of chemical 5 munitions, eventually resulting in the tragic death in this case. The Defendants 6 who used that the failed canister device (RELIC) had never been tested in a 7 manner consistent with several industry standards for this type of indoor situation.
8 (PF 44, 51). Additionally, all manufacturer's warning labels were ignored and/or 9 unknown to many using the products, including commanding officers with many 10 years of experience and the Sheriff's Department's designated person most 11 knowledgeable. (PF 25, 40-41, 52, 54-56). This is especially troubling because of 12 the severe danger posed by the improper use of chemical munitions, including 13 smoke and gas grenades. Like Canton where police were armed with firearms 14 without training, here too, County of Los Angeles deputies were armed (and still 15 are armed) with highly flammable smoke and gas grenades without sufficient 16 training. The only training conducted with these highly flammable devices was 17 done under different circumstances; outside and/or on concrete rather than inside 18 on carpets and furniture. This danger is multiplied by department officials and 19 deputies (including supervising officers) who have all willingly turned a blind eye 20 to manufacturer's warnings contained on the grenade that specifically states the 21 device is to be used only outdoors.

22 John Kapeles (person most knowledgeable from Safariland/Defense 23 Technologies) states that the use of chemical munitions; specifically, the gas 24 canisters designed for outdoor use (#1072 and #1082) were not intended to be used 25 indoors under any conditions. (PF 53). Additionally, the warning labels were clear 26 that the specific gas canisters were not to be used indoors because they had a high 27 probability of starting a fire. (PF 53-55). Individuals within the Sheriff's 28

1 Department have testified that all manufacturer's warning labels were either
2 unknown and/or were ignored. (Maxwell—incident commander who authorized 3 the gas plan, Young—designated as Sheriff's Department's person most 4 knowledgeable, Lieutenant Giandomenico—commanding officer on scene, 5 Stade—who developed the gas plan, Geisbauer—person who deployed the 6 RELIC)-all knew nothing. (PF 52, 55). No one from the Sheriff's Department has 7 seen and/or was familiar with a form labeled Special Enforcement Bureau 8 Chemical Agents, including Maxwell, incident commander who authorized the gas 9 plan, Young, PMK, Stade, person who developed the gas plan and in 14 years had 10 never seen the form and Deputy Geisbauer, person who deployed the RELIC.
11 Lieutenant Giandomenico, a commanding officer on scene testified that he had 12 seen the form, but disagrees with it even though it is a form used by the Los 13 Angeles County Sheriff's Department Special Enforcement Bureau and was 14 produced by the County of Los Angeles during discovery. (PF 56). Additionally, 15 many of the involved deputies had never seen and/or was familiar with a form 16 titled Chemical Agents Instructor Handbook—Sample Deployment Worksheet 17 even though it is an industry standard to use the worksheet before deploying gas.
18 (PF 57). Had the worksheet been used by the deputies and commanding officers 19 on scene, the catastrophic fire that killed Decedent would likely have been 20 prevented.

21 There existed a culture within the Los Angeles Sheriff's Department of 22 inbred training that obviously resulted in the unfortunate death of Decedent. Based 23 on the evidence, the policies, training, and practices have been passed on for many 24 years within the Sheriff's Department Specialized Enforcement Bureau or SEB 25 without analysis or review. The practices and training within SEB ignored law 26 enforcement standards as well as manufacturer's warnings and labels on how the 27 products were intended to be used. The inbred practices and training ultimately 28

1 resulted in poor training, which led to poor decision making on this case. This was 2 all foreseeable.

3 The County's failure to test and train in the use, quantity and construction of 4 gas grenades and of a properly tested burn safe device shows Monell liability. No 5 one from the Sheriff's Department is able to identify what or how the failed device 6 (RELIC) was tested to ensure that it was safe. Several commanding officers and 7 members from the Sheriff's Department have trained with the failed device; 8 however, the training was conducted at their county training facility, in an outside 9 environment and/or inside a building with concrete floors and walls (PF 46). No 10 one from the Sheriff's Department, including the person most knowledgeable 11 (PMK Deputy Young), is able to testify that the failed device, (RELIC) was ever 12 tested and/or used in training with the intent to deploy it in an environment 13 encompassing carpet or furniture (PF 47). The commanding officers and members 14 never read nor were aware of the manufacturer's warnings pertaining to the use of 15 riot control chemical agents; specifically, the Def Tech / Safariland model #1072, 16 #1082 and/or Spede Heat Continuous Discharge 555. (PF 48).

17 Plaintiff's expert witness Robert Fonzi, 32-year veteran with the San 18 Bernardino County Sheriff's Department and San Diego Police Department who 19 retired as Undersheriff from the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department, 20 opines that the County of Los Angeles failed to reasonably train its deputies in the 21 proper use of force with these devices. "[I]n the context of a failure to train claim, 22 expert testimony may prove the sole avenue available to plaintiffs to call into 23 question the adequacy of a municipality's training procedures." Russo v. City of 24 Cincinnati, 953 F.2d 1036, 1047 (1992). "Reliance on expert testimony is 25 particularly appropriate where, as here, the conclusions rest directly upon the 26 expert's review of materials provided by the City itself." Id. Particularly in this 27 case, expert testimony categorically affirms a finding of Monell liability under the 28

1 failure to train theory. Fonzi states the County of Los Angeles failed to train its 2 deputies properly in the deployment of chemical munitions. Specifically, in 3 deployment of chemical munitions, the County of Los Angeles failed to train its 4 deputies in how to deploy chemical agents into a residence, the proper and 5 reasonable deployment of flash bang grenades, the proper and reasonable 6 apprehension of suspects, and in responding to a potentially mentally impaired
7 and/or intoxicated subject. Furthermore, the practices and training with SEB 8 ignored law enforcement standards as well as manufacturer's warning labels.
9 Fonzi further states that because there existed with the Sheriff's Department a 10 culture of inbred training, those inbred practices and training ultimately resulted in 11 substandard training (PF 39, 42). Fonzi opines that Decedent's death was the 12 proximate result of the County of Los Angeles' failure to train their employees in 13 this vital and highly dangerous areas of law enforcement. (PF 38).

14 Based on evidence from the County's own deputies, the involved deputies 15 lacked proper training, were in fact poorly trained, and their knowledge of industry 16 standards was unacceptable (PF 58). Expert Fonzi highlights the staggering 17 amount of inbred training that occurred with SEB (PF 39, 42). Several of the 18 involved defendants testified that they had never received any formal chemical 19 agents or munitions training outside the department. None of the involved 20 defendants were certified chemical agents/munitions instructors with respect to use 21 and deployment. The only exception was Captain Ewell, who had been to the FBI 22 Instructor's course in the 1980s or 30 years earlier. As a result of the County of 23 Los Angeles' failure to reasonably and properly train its employees on the use of 24 these weapons, Decedent's constitutional rights were violated when he was 25 tragically killed.
